WHEREAS, the University wishes to revise its existing Liquidity Management Policy to introduce language to address liquidity rebalancing needs and update the policy reporting requirements;

RESOLVED, the Board of Visitors approves the University's revised Liquidity Management Policy, presented as an Appendix.

Remarks by the Rector

The Rector said the fall semester has been extraordinarily busy. He recognized Mark Edmondson for his article on the University and commended his courage; the Deans'

Working Group for their review of safety and security at the University; and Micah Kiser for his comments to his fellow football players following the August 11 and 12 events. He thanked the Health System for the work they do in the face of chaos about the health payment system in this country.

The Rector said, contrary to what some people believe, the University is making remarkable progress on diversity, and is putting substantial resources into increasing diversity. It has been the highest priority over the last three to four years.

He said the University is looking at “living wage” issues for contract workers. UVA’s lowest wage for its own employees is above the generally accepted “living wage” level.

He said no one wants to raise tuition, but the University has to invest to ensure the quality of a UVA education for future students. It is also important to provide financial aid so those who cannot afford to attend have access to educational opportunities.

He concluded with a comment that the Board is doing some good and important work. He asked Dr. Britt to give a report on the Health System Board meeting.

Report on Health System Board Meeting

Dr. Britt gave a brief overview of the Health System Board meeting. This overview can be found at the following link:

<http://www.virginia.edu/bov/meetings/'17%20December/'17%20DEC%20REPORT%20FROM%20HSB%20MEETING%20FOR%20BOV%2012-17.pdf>

The Rector thanked Dr. Britt and recognized Dean Risa Goluboff to report on the work of the Deans’ Working Group.

Deans’ Working Group

Ms. Goluboff reported on three areas: safety and security, three developments underway to help us live our values, and a long-term investment proposal.

Two policies already have been put into place: designating the Lawn as a facility, and prohibiting open flames. A third policy that is close to final is on time, place, and manner restrictions regarding speech. Following meetings with those who will implement the policy and those who will be affected by it, it will be submitted to the policy committee in the new calendar year.

In addition, there have been two relevant reviews since the September meeting: Margolis Healy’s external review of the University’s security apparatus and the Heaphy report on the City of Charlottesville’s handling of the events of August 11 and 12. Ms. Goluboff said she was sure many had seen the coverage on these reports, which were critical of the University, but consistent with the findings of the Dean’s Working Group. She said the University had acted quickly to identify potential improvements three months ago, took responsibility for what happened, and moved to implement improvements quickly. The University is continuing to follow up and the Working Group will meet later in December with Tim Heaphy and Steven Healy to identify next steps.

Ms. Goluboff said there are three developments underway to help identify what we need to do to live our values. First, an Advisory Committee on the Historic Landscape will identify principles for thinking about historic symbols on Grounds. She said they will advise the Working Group on the location and use of the plaques containing the names of Confederate dead. This committee is co-chaired by former President John Casteen, and history and African American studies professor Claudrena Harold. A website with an input form will become public in January.

The second development involves moving forward on the pan-University climate survey with the Provost's office, which will be disseminated in February or March. Third, an inventory of how the University engages with the Charlottesville community and the Commonwealth will be created. This information will be shared with the Ad Hoc Committee on Commonwealth Engagement.

The draft proposal for longer term investments is attached to these Minutes. She said the University is still in the early stages of thinking about this. Many far-reaching plans and programs are already underway. It is important to support these initiatives now and not wait. The preliminary report compiles the ongoing and emerging initiatives. The first category of initiatives has to do with who we are as a University. The second goes beyond the University around inclusivity and respect—the first step is the climate survey, and also immediate and ongoing diversity programming. The third is recommending funding to continue in a new form the work of the President's Commission on Slavery and the University with a possible change in name and scope, and an interdisciplinary clinic for the community. Funding for study and research and coordination of democracy initiatives is recommended, plus increased support for the Carter G. Woodson Institute, the Curry School's Center on Public Education, Race, and the South, and the Institute for Social Justice and Religious Freedom.

Mr. Conner presented two photographs, framed together, to thank Jim Murray for his work on the Concert for Charlottesville. Mr. Murray said he was thankful to live in a community with people who can make this happen: Dave Matthews and Coran Capshaw, and others.

Margolis Healy Report

Mr. Hogan introduced Mr. Steven Healy of Margolis Healy, who reported on enhancements to safety and security around Grounds. He made six recommendations, including consolidating all campus safety and security functions into one division and hiring an Associate Vice President with expertise in these areas to supervise all activities, reporting to the Chief Operating Officer. He also recommended evolving crime prevention programming and community relations, including reaching out more to students.

Mr. Healy's further recommendations include investing additional resources in event management and coordination; reconsidering the approach to the physical security program with more central management; enhancing emergency preparedness operations, including consolidating the Medical Center emergency management with the academic division; and improving threat assessment team processes including clarifying the mission, scope, and authority of the threat assessment team.

President's Report

President Sullivan said the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools' Commission on Colleges (SACSCOC) has approved the University's accreditation with no comments. With a clean certification and the vote this week, this concludes all requirements for reaffirmation of accreditation.

At this week's SACSCOC meeting, delegates voted to approve a revised Principles of Accreditation, which will now include a new standard under the section related to Governing Boards. The new standard stipulates that an institution's governing board "defines and regularly evaluates its responsibilities and expectations." SACSCOC has not yet provided guidance on this standard, including guidance on what the word "regularly" means in this context of board self-evaluations. President Sullivan will share additional information from SACSCOC and the State Council of Higher Education in Virginia (SCHEV) when it is available.

President Sullivan report for the last time on the Cornerstone Plan. She said when work began on a strategic plan five years ago, the goal was to implement strategies in such a way that they would eventually be woven into the everyday fabric of UVA, which is how it is today. The plan's priorities have become the University's priorities. A few examples:

- Students are always the highest priority in planning, and enhancing the already-distinctive UVA student experience has been a top strategy in the Cornerstone Plan.
- Total Advising, the restructured mentoring program, will blend academic advising, career counseling, and personal mentoring. The new Total Advising Center on the second floor of Clemons Library will be dedicated next month. Named the Dathel and John Georges Student Center to honor the donors who provided the lead gift, the Center will allow students to find academic, professional, and personal advising resources in one, central location.
- The Virginia Alumni Mentoring Program will match students with alumni working in fields that interest their mentees; the UVA Career Center was overhauled; and a new Internship Center was created. The Career Center has added a location on the second floor of the new student space at 1515 University Avenue.
- The Meriwether Lewis Institute for Citizen Leadership equips students with practical leadership skills. Another program is the Tri-Sector Leadership Fellowship program, which brings together students from Darden, the Batten School, and the School of Law to investigate real-world problems, examine current practices, and propose solutions.

- The Undergraduate Student Opportunities in Academic Research Program (USOAR) matches first- and second-year and transfer students with a paid research position. More than 200 students have participated in the program since its inception in 2013.
- Enhanced support for transfer students includes welcome programs and a Transfer Advisory Board comprised of transfer students and Student Council representatives,
- To prepare students for the global economy, UVA has increased offerings in study-abroad, J-term, embedded semesters, research, and service. For the first time ever, in the 2016-17 academic year, there were more than 3,000 students involved in various education-abroad activities around the world. The “UVA London First” program was launched this fall, and next fall “UVA Shanghai First” program will be launched, giving first-year students the opportunity to begin their undergraduate work in these important cities abroad. A major in Global Studies and a new Global Internship Program have increased participation. These and other efforts in global outreach resulted in UVA receiving a 2015 Senator Paul Simon Award for Campus Internationalization-- one of only five institutions nationwide to win the award.
- To ensure that UVA’s excellent educational experience remains accessible to all students, regardless of their families’ financial means, the Affordable Excellence program was created.
- Building a distinguished and diverse faculty for UVA’s third century is a top priority in the plan. This fall, UVA continued a strategic, but aggressive, approach to faculty hiring: 103 new tenured and tenure-track faculty members were hired, and this is one of the most diverse groups of new faculty ever hired. Two strategic faculty-hiring initiatives — cluster hires and target-of-opportunity searches (TOPS) have helped enhance faculty diversity while supplementing faculty-hiring activities in the schools.
- Enhancing the research enterprise has been another priority in the Cornerstone Plan, with a particular focus on interdisciplinary research. President Sullivan reviewed the many initiatives in this area, including pan-university research institutes, growth in sponsored research, a climb in rankings for R&D expenditures, increased research spending by the University, and the new Innovation Seed Fund which will invest $10 million over 10 years to commercialize UVA technologies.
- Organizational Excellence has led to substantial cost savings across the institution. In one project, more than 10,000 HR tasks across 85 schools and units were analyzed to identify opportunities for efficiencies.

- In 2016, the Board launched the Strategic Investment Fund to provide investments for top priorities to distinguish UVA. Recent investments are supporting neuroscience research; efforts by Engineering, Nursing, Medicine, and Arts & Sciences to improve health outcomes; and the “Democracy Initiative,” which originated in Arts & Sciences — a project that combines teaching, research, and public engagement to focus on issues related to democracy worldwide.

Forbes magazine recently published a list of the top-10 reasons why strategic plans fail. The list included not having the right people involved; not focusing on results; ignoring marketplace realities; and having only a partial commitment to success.

The Cornerstone Plan has succeeded because 10,000 people, including faculty, students, staff, alumni, parents, and others were involved. The plan has succeeded because it is focused on results, and UVA was willing to change in order to achieve those results. Success also comes out of a full commitment to the strategies in the plan. President Sullivan said that UVA is now well-positioned to reach even greater heights in its third century.

Comments by the Student Representative to the Board

Ms. Bryanna Miller addressed the members. She covered a number of points very quickly, including:

- Graduate students are active in advocating with regard to the tax plan in Congress.
- The student memorial garden has opened and this is a great reflective space.
- Undergraduates United for Socioeconomic Diversity has developed a program to provide tickets to events to low-income students.
- She is keeping an eye on efforts to promote a better balance for student athletes.
- Dining changes have been implemented with a new spice bar and salad bowls instead of plates—and she and others are still working on more changes.
- The Black Student Alliance is excited about support for the Memorial for Enslaved Laborers and looks forward to programming in the space. The climate survey will set up a better foundation to address other concerns of the BSA. She will share hiring and enrollment advances with the BSA.
- The Honor Audit Commission is completing its report and she will have more to say on the findings at the next meeting.

The theme from the meeting: more civic engagement of students, which has implications for the University as well as for the Commonwealth and nation. She encouraged engaging with students on issues.

Comments by the Faculty Senate Chair

Mr. Alf Weaver reviewed the activities of Faculty Senate committees: Academic Affairs; Recruitment, Retention, Retirement and Welfare, including a workshop on how to retire; and Teaching, Research and Scholarship.

Bicentennial Launch Celebration Report

Mr. Jody Kielbasa served on the Bicentennial's Engagement and Promotion Executive Advisory Group and led the University's Arts Community in planning the Launch Celebration. He reported on the Launch Celebration and showed a brief video clip highlighting some of the events. After his remarks, the Rector presented him with a gift of two photographs from the Launch Celebration, framed together.

Recognition of Bicentennial Events

The Rector recognized several other people for their roles in recent Bicentennial events. Dr. Marcus L. Martin and Mr. Kirt Von Daacke put on a very impressive Symposium entitled, "Universities, Slavery, Public Memory, and the Built Landscape." Dr. Martin was not present. The Rector gave Mr. Von Daacke a commemorative framed photograph of the event.

Ms. Stewart Gamage organized the Women's Global Leadership Forum, held in November. Ms. Dorothy McAuliffe, the First Lady of Virginia and honorary chair for the Forum, was also present. Ms. McAuliffe spoke about the many impressive participants they were able to attract, on topics of education, health, equal access, and political empowerment. She expressed an interest in continuing work around women's leadership. Ms. Gamage said a few words focused on future initiatives, and the Rector gave her a framed photograph to recognize her role in organizing the Forum.

Strategic Investment Fund Projects

The total commitments to date add up to $214,444,000. Rector Conner asked President Sullivan to report briefly on the seven proposals before the Board.

1. Proposal 136, Bicentennial Professors, $75m over four years. This proposal, endorsed by 10 deans, is analogous to the Bicentennial Scholars Program in providing a match for philanthropic gifts intended to create an endowed chair in any program or school.

2. Proposal 138, Autism, $6.2m over three years. This proposal, endorsed by the deans of Curry, Medicine, the Brain Institute, and the Data Science Institute, seeks to build a research and training infrastructure for autism services. It is expected to leverage an equivalent amount of philanthropy, and it will be a commonwealth-wide effort.
3. Proposal 135, Addiction in Virginia, $3.6m over three years. This project, endorsed by the deans of Medicine, Nursing, and SEAS, is intended to develop interventions for three addiction issues that affect UVA: binge drinking among undergraduates, smoking among employees, and opioid abuse in Southwest Virginia.
4. Proposal 128, Smart Infrastructure, $2m over three years. This will create a wireless-sensor testbed to be constructed on top of the university's physical plant. It is a collaboration between Facilities Management and the School of Engineering and Applied Science (SEAS) that provides a unique platform for conducting applied research, serving as a magnet for industrial and federal funding.
5. Proposal 129, Three Cavaliers Research Seed Fund, $3.3m over two years. This proposal is a priority for the new Vice President for Research, Melur "Ram" Ramasubramanian, and is based on a model that has been successful at the University of Michigan. It encourages multidisciplinary teams to collaborate, and will ultimately position them for additional external funding.
6. Proposal 130, Behavioral Research, $2.2m over three years. This proposal was submitted by Darden and SEAS, with additional involvement by the School of Nursing and the School of Medicine. It provides infrastructure and core facilities to enhance capability to explore behavioral economics, a burgeoning field that is of interest to disciplines across the university.
7. Proposal 143: Virginia Initiative on Cosmic Origins, $1m over three years. This proposal, submitted by the College, will help establish an interdisciplinary research center that will explore the origins of life in the universe. It will leverage the existing partnerships with the National Radio Astronomy Observatory (NRAO), the Max Planck Institute, and Chalmers University, and will improve the ability to attract funding from NASA and NSF.

The total commitment is $93.3 million over four years. Upon motion duly seconded, the Board approved the following resolution.

I. Overview

This policy documents the University of Virginia’s liquidity management guidelines. Within the context of this document, liquidity is defined as cash and cash equivalents, access to cash, and the convertibility of assets to cash in order to meet operating and financial needs during the operating cycle.

Liquidity risk is defined as an inability to meet payment obligations in a timely manner when they become due and the risk that assets may not be convertible into cash when needed. Liquidity risk is categorized into three risk types:

- Operating liquidity risk occurs when the University cannot fund its operating expenses due to insufficient liquid cash holdings.
- Financing liquidity risk occurs as a result of external financing activities and the potential for those financings to come due before maturity (e.g., commercial paper, put-able debt, credit lines)
- Market liquidity risk occurs when the University is unable to convert assets into cash without significant losses.

This policy serves an important governance function by providing a framework to define liquidity, establishing and assigning responsibilities for managing the institution’s liquidity needs, evaluating the appropriate level of liquidity for the institution, and outlining sources of liquidity and procedures to access liquidity when needed.

The liquidity policy works in tandem with the University’s Board-approved Debt Policy, Working Capital Investment Policy, and Interest Rate Risk Management Policy.

II. Scope and Objectives

Scope

The policy governs University-wide liquidity management, including the Academic Divisions and the Medical Center. The policy does not govern liquidity management at University-affiliated foundations, including the University of Virginia Investment Management Company (“UVIMCO”).

Objectives

The policy exists to provide a framework under which the University seeks to achieve its liquidity management goals. The goals include providing sufficient liquidity to support the:

- cash flow needs of the annual operating cycle
- remarketing risk for the University's put-able debt
- University's credit ratings

III. Oversight

Oversight

The Office of the Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer (EVP-COO) is responsible for implementing this policy and all liquidity activity for the University. This policy and any subsequent, material changes to the policy will be approved by the University's Board of Visitors.

The University's Office of the Treasurer manages liquidity and works in close coordination with the Medical Center and UVIMCO to manage liquidity and associated risks.

The University meets periodically with UVIMCO to review the policy and discuss liquidity requirements.

IV. Liquidity Management

The Office of the Treasurer manages liquidity to ensure access to sufficient cash during normal and stressed liquidity environments. The University meets these needs with a combination of internal and external liquidity. The University categorizes liquidity sources as committed or uncommitted. Committed funding represents funding available to the University (e.g., cash and short term investments) as well as external funding sources where the provider has committed to providing funding, regardless of circumstance (e.g., credit lines). Uncommitted funding are sources of liquidity whereby the provider is under no commitment to fund (e.g., commercial paper buyers).

Liquidity Sources

The University's liquidity sources include the following:

- Operating revenues
- Cash and liquid investment balances (including University reserves)
- Commercial Paper
- Operating Credit Lines
- Dedicated Credit Lines supporting put-able debt

Liquidity Uses

Liquidity is primarily used to satisfy (1) operating expenses, and (2) non-operating, episodic needs. Non-operating needs may include irregular investment or financing needs.

Episodic needs may also include unplanned stresses to operating revenues (e.g., state appropriation reductions, government shutdowns, market downturns, etc.) or expenses.

Liquidity uses include both operating and funding needs, such as:

- Operating expenses
- Planned debt service
- Unplanned put-able debt maturities

Liquidity Targets

Days Cash on Hand:

Liquidity accessible within one month divided by daily operating expenses: Target ≥ 180 days

Days cash on hand (“DCH”) is a measure of the University’s contingent liquidity. It measures how many days of operating expense an entity can support with its liquidity. DCH is defined as liquidity accessible within one month divided by daily operating expenses. DCH is one of the metrics measured by the rating agencies and the University seeks to target a level of DCH that supports operations, in addition to supporting ratings goals.

The University also targets a highly liquid DCH (cash & cash equivalents/daily operating expenses) of 15 days, typically occurring at the low point of its annual cash flow cycle.

Daily Liquidity as a Percent of Variable Rate Debt:

Cash and liquidity divided by outstanding put-able debt: Target $\geq 1.5x$

While having put-able debt outstanding, the University will maintain sufficient unrestricted liquid investments and/or sources of liquidity for maintaining the highest debt ratings. Unrestricted sources of liquidity may be modified and/or replaced during the life of the put-able debt in such ways that are and the University and that are within debt document parameters.

Rebalancing

At least annually, the University will review its liquidity profile and targets to determine if its liquidity position requires rebalancing. The University will holistically consider what, if any, adjustments to make to its cash sources and uses in order to rebalance its liquidity position. This may include modifications through the annual budgeting process, existing capital and operating plans, and use of operating and other reserves. To the extent that such rebalancing requires a withdrawal of strategic operating reserves from the Strategic Investment Funds held at UVIMCO, such withdrawals will whenever possible be proposed to and approved by the BOV as part of the approval of the annual budget. Should unplanned exigencies require the unbudgeted withdrawal of reserves outside the annual process such withdrawals may be made with the prior approval of the President, the Rector, and the Chair of the Finance Committee.

V. Risk Management

Monitoring and Reporting

The Office of the Treasurer is responsible for managing the daily cash position of the University, performing cash flow forecasting and variance analyses, and working with University units to manage aggregate institutional liquidity. Key liquidity reports include:

Quarterly

Treasury Report - highlighting, among other things, cash and investment holdings as well as liquidity ratios.

Stress Testing - listing the following items:

- sources and uses under normal and stressed environments
- stress tests
- liquidity ratios

Annually

Cash Flow Forecast - used to project and manage cash flows throughout the year and support operating cash flow decisions, including the management of DCH targets

The reports listed here may be amended from time to time as needed at the discretion of the EVP-COO.

Liquidity Source Diversification

The University attempts to diversify its various sources of liquidity. Diversification is achieved via liquidity source (e.g., cash, credit lines, commercial paper) and counterparty (e.g., credit lines with several counterparties, commercial paper issued by more than one dealer).

Diversification of cash and investments is in accord with the diversification guidelines in the University's Working Capital Investment Policy and UVIMCO's Investment Policy Statement.

Liquidity Triggers

Liquidity triggers are intended to provide warning signs of events that could adversely affect the University's liquidity. The occurrence of a trigger event will be brought to the attention of the EVP-COO, and discussed with the Chair of the Board of Visitors' Finance Committee, and result in the development of a risk mitigation plan, if necessary. Triggers include, but are not limited to:

- material changes in committed or uncommitted liquidity sources
- material deviations from DCH targets
- credit ratings pressure resulting from liquidity ratios
- difficulty remarketing put-able debt
- stress on distributions or available distributions from UVIMCO

- stress on capital and bank markets affecting the ability to draw on operating lines or issue commercial paper
- downgrade of a counterparty's ratings
- material changes in the liquidity profile of UVIMCO's short-term or long-term pools
